PRICE 2 CENTS

FIGHT

In Prospect For The Louisville Boys.

Sent to the Front to Reinforce General Schwan.

Ponce, Porto Rico, via Kingston, August 12.—(Special).—Gen. Schwan met a force of Spaniards near Hermingueros Tuesday. It consisted of about 1,200 men. A sharp engagement followed in which two privates of the 11th infantry were killed. Fifteen were wounded. The Spanish loss was heavy. Gen. Schwan continued his advance and Gen. Miles is sending the recently arrived Kentucky troops under Lieut. Belknap to join him.

Gen. Roy Stone's handful of men have not taken Arecibo, nor have they entered Lares. Gen. Henry is beyond the ridge on his way to Utuado to-day and Gen. Schwan will push on and meet him at Arecibo.

Gen. Wilson is going on steadily and easily to Aibonito and Gen. Brooke is advancing slowly.

Confirmation of the News

Given Exclusively Yesterday.

Washington, Aug. 12.—(Special).—As announced by this correspondent yesterday, Cambon was invested with authority to sign the Protocol and did so this morning, thus bringing to an end the war that has lasted 113 days.

Orders to suspend hostilities will be sent at once to all commanders in the field. The end of hostilities finds Gen. Miles' troops resting at Coamo, twenty miles from Ponce, while his engineers have been repairing bridges for an advance against the Spanish force concentrated at Aibonito, a few miles away on the military road.

Gen. Haines is north of Guayama and will be halted in his advance to cut off the Spaniards at Aibonito. Gen. Henry will be checked near Arecibo and Gen. Schwan will be halted in his march by another route upon the same point.

The signing of the peace protocol will not stop the dispatch of troops to the Philippines. Over three thousand men will go next week, and as many more will be shipped as soon as transports can be secured.

CONGRESSMAN JOHN A. T. HULL.

No member of the house of representatives occupies a more important position at present time than this gentleman who is the chairman of the house committee on military affairs. Mr. Hull is a man of great ability and has long been an influential republican leader for many years. He is now 57 years of age, strong, patriotic and able, and enjoying in the fullest measure the confidence of President McKinley and his cabinet.

BANDITS LOOT TRAIN

A Burlington Hold-up and a Rich Haul.

A Brakeman Was Seriously Injured in the Fusilade That Followed.

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 12.—(Special).—Bandits early this morning held up a passenger train on the Burlington road at Dug Hill, Mo., and got $8,280. Brakeman Feichtel was seriously wounded.

THE PROTOCOL.

The Ultimatum Sent to Spain By the President.

Its Terms in Detail Made Public For the First Time—What War Will Cost Spain.

1. The cession of Porto Rico to the United States, together with other Spanish West Indian Islands, not including Cuba.

2. The relinquishment of sovereignty over Cuba.

3. The cession of an island in Ladrones.

4. Recognition that the United States shall temporarily occupy the city and harbor of Manila, until the final decision as to the disposition of the Philippines is reached.

5. The appointment of a commission to determine the final disposition of the Philippines.

6. The constitution of a peace commission to arrange the future of the Philippines, with the place and time of meeting.

7. The suspension of hostilities

Mollie Chiles, disorderly conduct, two cases, 27 days in the work house.

These disorderly cases grew out of a general row last night on the corner of Clay and Second streets.

Boy Bowles, col., for breach of peace, was given 96 days in the work house.

FREAK IN FRUIT.

Seckel Pear Growing on a Concord Grape Vine in Hardin County.

Elizabethtown, Ky., August 12.—(Special).—Mr. Jas. H. Moore's grape arbor has developed a freak in shape of a pear of the Seckel variety, about the size of a large hickory nut. It is grown from a new sprout of the mother stalk of a Concord grape vine. There is much speculation as to the cause. Col. Harry A. Sommers advances the theory that the bloom of the grape vine and that of a Seckel pear near by germinated.

Another man, who has had experience in the nursery business, advances the opinion that the growth came about by the roots of the two soft-shelled-seeded fruit being grafted by nature. Still another, D. C. Haycraft, says it is nothing but an abnormal growth of the vine itself in the shape of a pear.

Gen. Schwan's command had a brush with Spaniards in Porto Rico on the 10th and two men were killed and fourteen wounded.

Mr. Geo. G. is in Pembroke on bus news.

to follow the formal signing of the protocol.

8. The evacuation of Cuba to be arranged by a commission of capitulation.

9. The disposition of the Spanish warships now in blockaded Cuban ports to be settled by the commission of capitulation.

10. Raising the blockade against Cuba.

11. Certain fortified points, such as Morro Castle and Fort Cabanas, to be occupied by the United States troops at the discretion of the President.

12. Spanish soldiers remaining in Cuba until the end of the rainy season to perform police duty and preserve order.

13. A special commissioner to be appointed to co-operate with Captain-General Blanco in the direction of affairs.

14. The Spanish Municipal Governments to be continued, as was done at Santiago, until such time as the evacuation shall have been completed.

15. Spanish officials to be permitted to collect revenues with the exception of those imposed upon the importation of food products.

16. Arrangements to be made for feeding, if not compensating, such Spanish soldiers as shall be employed in policy duty.

17. Mines in the harbor of Havana to be removed by the Spanish authorities.

18. All minor details regarding the evacuation of Cuba and Porto Rico will be left to the commission of capitulation.

ENDED

So Far as the Fighting Is Concerned.

The Rest Will Be Red Tape and Will Last Some Time.

Washington, August 12.—(Special).—The peace protocol is to be signed to-day and then the peace commissioners will be appointed by the contending countries to meet in Paris, where they will decide upon a treaty of peace. But all of these details relate to the red-tape procedure that usually accompanies momentous transactions between nations.

To all practical intents and purposes, the war has ended and Secretary Alger has sent dispatches to the military commanders in the field, and Assistant Secretary Allen has sent cablegrams to Admirals Sampson and Dewey, informing them of the present status of peace negotiations. Cessation of hostilities will now be granted and the business of winding up the greatest war of recent years will be begun.

CONSUL RAMSDEN DEAD.

His Services as British Consul Earned American Regard.

Kingston, Jamaica, August 12.—(Special).—Mr. W. Ramsden, for over 35 years British Consul at Santiago de Cuba, has just died in this city in the 85th year of his age. He leaves a wife, three daughters and four sons, one of whom is British Vice Consul at Manila. Mr. Ramsden's services throughout the war between America and Spain and his kindness to all Americans with whom he came into contact, earned for him the consideration of the American people.

Picnic Party To-day.

Quite a jolly party of young people went out to Edwards' Mill today to have a picnic in the woods.

DARK HORSE

Wins in the Ninth District Convention.

Cynthiana, Ky., Aug. 12.—(Special).—Mordelline Williams, of Boyd county, was nominated for Congress by the Democrats of the Ninth district yesterday. The nomination was made on the eighty-eighth ballot. Waller Sharp withdrew from the race early in the afternoon, and after several more ballots the final contest came between Williams and Kehoe. Williams winning by a vote of 57 to 51.

They Came Clear.

The Commonwealth vs. John Hanrahan, col., and others, a branch of the peace case, was called in Judge Canister's court this morning and resulted in an acquittal.

The Brazilian government made no mistake in appointing this clever and distinguished diplomat its minister plenipotentiary to the United States. Dr. Braga has but recently arrived at Washington from Lisbon, the capital of Portugal. His new appointment is a promotion, although the post at Lisbon is a very delicate one for a Brazilian diplomat, as most of the royal plots against the republic are hatched in Portugal.

A Santiago correspondent says of the soldiers returned to Spain: "The embarkation of the sick Spaniards on the Alcante was a most pitiful sight. They were brought from the hospitals on stretchers, in wagon and upon the backs of their comrades, often scarcely stronger than the sick men they bore. The docks were lined with officers and soldiers, who supported or carried their wives and daughters. The American wagons and ambulances brought carloads of miserable, colorless skeletons. It was a heart-rending spectacle."

TORGES TRICK DOG.

BY W. A. CURTIS.

"What a symphony in yellow!" exclaimed Mr. Morris, as he and his young son swept around a curve of the road, clinging to the mountain side. "I must have a snap shot at them. I wish I were a painter instead of a photographer, to get the colors," and he alighted from his bicycle and began to parley with Torge Halvorsen, to get him and his dog to pose before the camera.

Torge Halvorsen's hair was pale gold; golden-brown freckles studded his fair face. The original color of the coat he wore, one made over from a paternal garment worn an unknown number of seasons, could not be conjectured, but now it was of a full yellow, closely matching his hair. His once brown overalls struck a louder note in the yellow hue to which they had faded, and the hide of the little dog at his side was still brighter yellow, scarcely to be told from the garlands of yellow daisies entwined about its body. In the immediate foreground was the buff herbage of early fall, full of the last flowers of the year—yellow, yellow all. Back of the pair rose the maple-covered mountain side, bright in the gold that follows the first frosts of the central west, where maples shimmer softly in golden, golds, and never flame in scarlets and crimson.

"That's a homely dog you have there," said Ralph Morris, full of the popular prejudice against the "yaller dog," a prejudice fed by unnumbered jokes and which refuses to believe that any canine graces of appearance and disposition can be circumscribed by a yellow hide.

"He's a good dog, anyway," replied Torge Halvorsen; "and I think he is pretty. He's smart, too. I bet you there ain't a smarter little dog in this country."

"Let's see him perform," said Ralph, loftily.

"All right," said Torge. "Ready, Tiggum!" and instantly Tiggum assumed an air of alert attention and then proceeded to go through a series of performances which Ralph was compelled to acknowledge he had never seen equaled. Tiggum stood on his hind legs; he danced, he leaped over his master's arm and then back again. He lay still and snored in counterfeit sleep; he lay still in counterfeited death, and at the word came joyfully to life and chased his tail. He carried a piece of paper to the fence and returned with another piece previously placed there, showing how he could be depended upon to carry letters to the post office, posse them, and return with the mail. He ran after sticks that were thrown. Sticks were thrown and he set, quivering, awaiting permission to go after them. He caught sticks as they were tossed to him, and again being told not to catch them, sat in pretended indifference while they were thrown within easy reach of his jaws.

"He's a wonderful dog indeed," said Mr. Morris, as the exhibition was concluded by Tiggum being told that there was nothing more to be done, whereupon he raced and tore in circles and ellipses and other geometrical figures for the space of some three minutes.

"I wish you would buy him for me," whispered Ralph to his father.

"I'll give you ten dollars for that dog. Will you sell him for that?" asked Mr. Morris.

"Can I buy a nice suit of clothes for that?" said Torge.

"Well, yes; you could get a pretty good ready-made suit for that in Tay- choberry. I'll make it $12, and then you'll be sure to get a good suit."

"Well, I'll sell him, then. Ole Far- ness has a puppy just like Tiggum that he wants to give me, and I kin train him all right. I ain't got no brothers, and me and Tiggum play together, and he likes me a whole lot, and perhaps he'll be home in town. But I do want a new suit for me, I never had no new clothes ever since I sold him."

On the very first day of the month of August at his new home received the opening of the first dog show ever in the city of Taychoberry. Ralph had had this in mind when he asked his father to buy Tiggum; for though he did not expect the yellow dog to win a prize for beauty or pedigree, he did believe that the little fellow would carry off the ten dollars to be awarded to the most highly educated dog. The ten dollars would almost repay the cost of the dog, and he would be possessed of the unlimited glory of being the owner of so remarkable a beast, and this he esteemed far beyond the mere worldly considerations of the ten dollars.

Whether Tiggum was homesick or not during the two days of the dog show Ralph could not tell, for he was kept in his box in the exhibition building and was no worse off than the other dogs held from their homes to be seen of curious eyes. The contest of educated dogs was to be the wind-up of the show, and a goodly crowd assembled to witness it. From his place on the bench with the owners of competing dogs, with ever increasing joy, Ralph watched dog after dog go through his paces, for no one of them began to equal what he knew Tiggum could do. Tiggum, the last on the programme, would surely outstrip them all.

A laugh of derision arose as Ralph and the sad-looking little yellow dog stepped into the arena, but immediately ceased when the command, "Tiggum, attention!" was given. Ralph held out his arm and Tiggum was off and back again like a yellow flash. Ralph whistled a waltz, and Tiggum slowly revolved to its measures and a storm of applause burst forth.

"We will win the prize, eh, Tiggum?" said Ralph, and he bade him down, and pressed him still, but Tiggum did nothing except to look up most anxiously. Ralph repeated the command, and still Tiggum did not move. He bade him remain seated to be dead; he ordered him to get the mail, and though the little fellow was all earnest attention and quivering with eagerness and anxiety, still he did not obey. Some one shouted that Ralph's time was up, and a titter commenced and grew into a general laugh. Ralph was only a little boy, and tears began to gather in his eyes. Tiggum would not take the prize, and now the crowd was laughing at him, the master; but what was the matter with Tiggum, for there he was, wildly running in circles and ellipses, and it was at Tiggum that the crowd was laughing—Tiggum and a yellow-haired, awkward boy in a new suit of clothes and a big bundle under his arm, who had pushed his way into the arena. He was addressing the assemblage, and Ralph held his breath.

"Ladies and gentlemen, Tiggum was my dog once. He was a Norsk like me. He doesn't speak English with good grammar. He don't understand what that boy says. Now give me a chance. Tiggum, lay down once. Don't do nothing at all nowhow, but be asleep," and there was Tiggum, curled up and snoring.

"Tiggum, you wasn't alive any more yet, lay down dead!" and there was Tiggum in simulated death. "Tiggum, take this letter to the post office to Mr. Gunderson, and fetch a letter back!" and away went Tiggum in the capacity of a mail carrier, and finished the performance by again darting wildly around with ears back, head up and tail down, teaching geometrical figures while the crowd cheered.

"I hardly believed," said Mr. Morris, "that Tiggum failed to obey, because he is particularly ungrammatical. Torge used a certain form of words, the meaning of which Tiggum had learned to understand. Ralph expressed the same meaning; but he didn't use the words familiar to Tiggum, so the dog didn't respond any more than the door of the cave in 'Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves' when addressed by the words 'open wheat,' instead of 'open sesame.'"

"Mr. Morris," said Torge, anxiously, "I wish I had Tiggum back. I want him and I want me. I spent ten dollars buying the suit of clothes before I knew it if I did. I wish you would take the clothes and the other two dollars and let me have the doggie again."

"The prize for the most highly educated dog is awarded to Ralph Morris, owner of Tiggum," shouted the manager of the show from the arena.

"There," said Ralph; "you take the dog and keep the clothes, and give us the two dollars. I've got the ten-dollar prize, and that and the two dollars I still have will give us our money back."—N. Y. Independent.

TOO BASHFUL TO MARRY.

Girl Who Caused Her Lover's Suicide Cuts Her Own Throat.

Cora Havens, of Columbia, Mo., cut her throat with a butcher-knife at the home of her father, a farmer near that place, and the attending physicians say that she cannot live. She is the young girl who, because of her extreme beauty, several times refused to marry C. L. Fait, a young farmer living near her home. On their wedding day, July 5, she flatly refused to allow the ceremony to proceed after the guests were present, and Fait went home and killed himself by swallowing morphine.

JOHN HILL DEAD.

A Well-Known Farmer of the Sinking Fork Vicinity.

John Hill, a well-known citizen of the Sinking Fork neighborhood, died yesterday of typhoid fever. He was 64 years old and leaves a family of six children. He had been sick for about two weeks. His funeral services were held this afternoon and the burial will take at the Hill burying ground three miles west of Gracey.

WILL WED SUNDAY.

A Young Couple in the Bluff Springs District.

Mr. A. L. Pepper and Miss Minnie B. Van Hooser will be married near Bluff Springs next Sunday by Rev. H. C. Helsley. They are prominent young people in the Kirksville neighborhood.

Uncle Sam's Warships.

Those who go to Old Point August 16th will be offered an opportunity to see the battleship Kentucky, and other vessels of the navy, as well as the navy yard at Portsmouth, which is a most interesting and instructive place, especially so at this time, as everyone is interested in this particular part of "Uncle Sam's" work, and seems anxious to know more about naval construction. You cannot afford to miss this trip.

Real Estate Deals.

Green Thompson sold to McRae Bros on last Saturday morning his farm for a consideration of more than $6,000. The farm was one of the best in the Casky neighborhood and contains, according to the best information obtainable, about 240 acres.

Mr. Thompson will move to our town at an early date, he having purchased the property belonging to J. M. Rose on Duffy street.—Pembroke Review.

Will Go on the Stage.

Mrs. Lillie McGoodwin Campbell, of Chicago, has decided to go on the stage, and will appear the coming season in various operatic roles.

Mrs. Campbell is a sister of Mrs. T. A. Pedley, of Owensboro, and Mrs. Grace Brown, of Princeton, and is well known here.

Judged a Lunatic.

Mrs. Dr. R. L. Boyd, of Altonville, Ky., was brought into the county Judge's office this morning in charge of her husband and tried for lunacy. She was adjudged insane by a jury and taken to the Asylum as a pay patient.

THE AX WILL FALL.

Heads Will Drop Like Those of Chickens in Conference Time.

The Collector to Remove Democrats to Make Room for the Republicans.

Collector Franks has got out his ax and is sharpening it up for use in the next few weeks. There will be a basket full and overflowing of the heads that will fall as a result of his use of it.

About twenty-five Democratic store-keepers, gauger and store-keepers-gaugers will be decapitated, and their places filled by Republicans. There is to be no violation of the civil service law in all this. That is, there is to be no violation of the letter of the law, but as to the spirit of it, that is another story.

When the distilleries close down every year a number of men are left out in the assignment, and get no more work until they open again. Last year about this time the collector represented to the commissioner of internal revenue that there were more men than were necessary to do the work, and all over the surplus required by the law were laid off. When the distilleries started up again more men were needed. Some were taken out of the eligible list of the civil service examination and others were taken in under the provision of the law which allows the reinstatement of those persons who have had previous service without examination. Last year exhausted this list, and now recourse will be had to the civil service list. There are about twenty-five Republicans on it this year, and all of these will be given places when the distilleries start up again in the fall. This will exhaust the list of Democrats and will make the revenue office as thoroughly Republican as it would have been under the spoils system.

Mr. Franks will not give out any information on this subject, but it is straight, and the machinery is already moving. When the order comes from Washington making the removals, the parties themselves will be notified of the fact, but it will not go to the public except by the individuals who are ill.
